Dieter Häussinger, born in 1951, has been Professor of Internal Medicine at Heinrich Heine University Düsseldorf and Director of the Department of Gastroenterology, Hepatology, and Infectious Diseases since 1994.

Dieter Häussinger received numerous national and international science awards, i. a. the Gottfried Wilhelm Leibniz Prize of the Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft (German Research Foundation). He was Dean of the Medical Faculty and a board member of the University Hospital of Düsseldorf (1998–2002), a member of the Medicine Committee of the German Science Council and a Senator of the Wissenschaftsgemeinschaft Leibniz. He is a member of the National Academy of Science Leopoldina and of the North Rhine-Westphalian Academy of Science and Arts. He was Coordinator of the Collaborative Research Center (SFB) 575 “Experimental Hepatology” (2000–2011) and of the Clinical Research Group 217 “Hepatobiliary Transport and Liver Disease” (2009–2017). Since 2012 he has been Coordinator of the Collaborative Research Center 974 “Communication and Systems Relevance in Liver Damage and Regeneration”.

In addition to his activities in the areas of clinical and experimental hepatology and gastroenterology, he is committed to the expansion and further development of the field of infectious diseases. He encouraged the certification of his department as a Center of Infectious Diseases, the addition of a tropical medicine and an infectious diseases outpatient clinic, the building of the Liver and Infectious Diseases Center, which houses the only treatment unit in North Rhine-Westphalia for highly infectious patients, and the founding of the Hirsch Institute of Tropical Medicine, which was opened in 2013 as a branch of the Department of Gastroenterology, Hepatology, and Infectious Diseases.
